If You Move Tell The Postmaster . . .

IN THE VALLEY OF THE MOON

Well. . . Well. . . Well. . . Postmasters and Newspaper Publishers have something in common, it turns out. . .

It seems there are persons who go away on vacation, give the postoffice a forwarding address and wonder why they don't get mail when they return home. . .

They must be the same persons who move without telling the newspaper they've done so and then write to inquire why they aren't getting their paper. . .

The moral is that when going on vacation or moving, give the postoffice full accurate instructions on what to do with your mail. . . It is also a good idea to let the newspaper office know, too, because we can do a better job of sending your copy of Moonbeams if we know where it's supposed to go. . .

It looks like our little Daily is going to be forced to return to a Weekly again soon. . . At least we can say we were the First Daily Published in the Valley of the Moon. . .

Thank you,
The Publisher
